Commitment to the Horses

Healthy horses are number one goal for Team Barber and Capital Challenge

Months ago during the Vermont Summer Festival, Oliver Kennedy, Jen Glass and Dr. Robert Barber met to discuss what type of protocol they were going to set up for Capital Challenge in response to the EHV outbreaks earlier in the year. After suffering through the events in Ocala, Dr. Barber knew he wanted to protect the horses coming in to Capital Challenge. He said, "We have a lot of horses coming from many different environments from across the country. We wanted to set the best example."

Billy Glass wasn't initially on board with what Dr. Barber was requesting. He admitted, "When Dr. Barber approached me about the bio security, and he wanted to check every single horse, I thought, 'Not a chance.' However, because of the respect that I have for him, I decided it was worth putting it in place with his advice. He formulated the system to do it."

That system included temperature logs, veterinarian signed vaccination reports, as well as a protocol which included disinfecting every stall before the start of the show as well as in between any turnovers. It took 40 man hours just to disinfect the stalls. In addition to the paperwork, Dr. Barber felt it was essential to have the paperwork and horses checked before they were allowed off the trailers.

Paperwork is stacking up after only four days, but it is critical for tracking horses if it were to become necessary.

The entire process requires a team of eleven people - five of them are in two locations 24/7 checking in horses alongside Dr. Barber, with two additional veterinarians and three vet techs. Surprisingly, when the paperwork is in order, it takes only minutes to check in the animals.

When asked why Dr. Barber felt it was so important to go to the lengths he did to protect the horses' health, he boiled it down simply saying, "This is a premier horse show and if we have a case tomorrow, the quarantine period is 28 days. That would wipe out all of indoors."

For Glass it was all about protecting the horses and his respect for Dr. Barber. He said, "He's been the veterinarian here for as long as I can remember, and he has always done me the service of being here early to accommodate the California guests. The trouble those Californians go through to come here, I feel responsible to have high-end veterinarian help.

"The bottom line is that I'm proud it is something we did and I'm proud of Dr. Barber for doing it." Glass said, "I have a responsibility to these horses, to provide them the best environment I can. Dr. Barber wants to do what's right for the horses too. I find that very rewarding."

Memorable Moments Over 20 Years

Throughout the week we will be bringing you some “flashback photos” and memorable moments recalled by exhibitors and staff. These moments aren’t always winning moments, and some of them aren’t even about the horses, but all of these memories are inextricably linked by one thing - the Capital Challenge Horse Show. We hope you enjoy looking back...

Havens Schatt - “Capital Challenge has been very good to me so I have a lot of good memories. But I think one of my favorites was just last year winning the Future Hunter Championship with Bacardi because I was so close to winning it the year before. I missed it by only half a point, so to come back and have a second chance and do it was great.”

Billy Glass - “My favorite memory is my first date with Jen on a Friday night.”

Tom Blankenship - “My favorite memory is Hunt Tosh during the Wednesday night class on Storm of Angels chipping that jump - chair in the air - over the oxer. That is the greatest memory.”

Robert Beck - “I’m going to say one of my favorite memories was just last year winning the World Champion Hunter Under Saddle with Serafino. I said to Melissa, “Let’s just take his shoes off and maybe we’ll get a sixth.” He went from being an athletic mover to a freak. And I’m going to say winning the ARIAT Finals with Melissa (Feller) because she did it so many times and the last time before she turned pro I had to convince her to do it. We ended up putting her on the least likely horse - a five year old - and she won it.”
